an for his lord should suffer with good heart,
Of bitter cold and great heat bear the smart,
His blood let drain, and all his flesh be scarred.
Strike with thy lance, and I with Durendal,
With my good sword that was the King's reward.
So, if I die, who has it afterward
Noble vassal's he may say it was." — SONG OF ROLAND—LXXXVIII.

Acknowledgement

THE members of the Year Book Staff wish to take this opportunity of expressing deep appreciation to all those who have so unselfishly aided in the compilation of DURENDAL, the 1930 Year Book of Clarke College; and of thanking the faculty and the students of the College for their good will and their immediate and continued support of this project. Especially is the Staff indebted to the English and Art Departments, without whose valuable assistance the successful and happy completion of this issue would not have been possible.

FOREWORD

DURENDAL, the sword of Roland, has flashed across the centuries always the symbol of noble endeavor in a worthy and righteous cause. The symbol too, of glorious achievement from which perhaps only God's Eternity will lift the veil.

With sincere regard for the nobleness of aim and accomplishment which this emblem typifies the Class of 1930 chooses DURENDAL as the name of its Year Book. And with fervent aspiration the Class of 1930 hopes to imitate the chivalric ideals of the Rolandic Legend. May DURENDAL, symbolizing as it does, the effort and achievement of these college days, point the way to yet more lofty heights.

DEDICATION

IN the relic room of Mount Carmel, the Mother House of the Sisters of Charity of the Blessed Virgin Mary, there is a small silver door-plate bearing the inscription, MISS CLARKE'S SCHOOL. Hallowed by the traditions of the almost completed cycle of a century, the little plate is treasured by the Sisters as having belonged to their first school in North Ann Street, Dublin, Ireland, the initial stage in the program of a vast educational system which here in America has made its influence felt from coast to coast.

For the students of CLARKE COLLEGE the precious door-plate has an especial significance since their institution, of all the schools conducted by the Sisters of Charity, B. V. M., is the only one to be named in honor of Mother Mary Francis Clarke, their Foundress. Rightly does the College hold this distinction, for it is in direct and unbroken succession, the lineal descendant of Miss Clarke's School.

In the four years as students of Clarke College the Class of 1930 have learned to appreciate the character and to love and revere the memory of the noble woman whose saintliness, zeal and courage opened the way to a realization of educational advantages and privileges which they to-day enjoy.

Faintly fragrant and clinging as the odor of roses the spirit of Mother Clarke permeates the very atmosphere in which they live. Her ideals have become their ideals—her virtues, theirs, in-so-far as a sincere endeavor to imitate them can make them so.

It is with the intent to express their devotion and indebtedness to her that the Class of 1930 of Clarke College reverently dedicate the Year Book, DURENDAL, to MOTHER MARY FRANCIS CLARKE.

Respice et Prospice

IS our Year Book, DURENDAL, nears completion, we are on the threshold of a new era for the Archdiocese of Dubuque. The address delivered at the Reception of the new Archbishop, the Most Reverend Francis J. L. Beckman, S. T. D., expresses though inadequately our mingled sentiments of deepest reverence, gratitude and welcome as the past meets the present. The address is as follows:

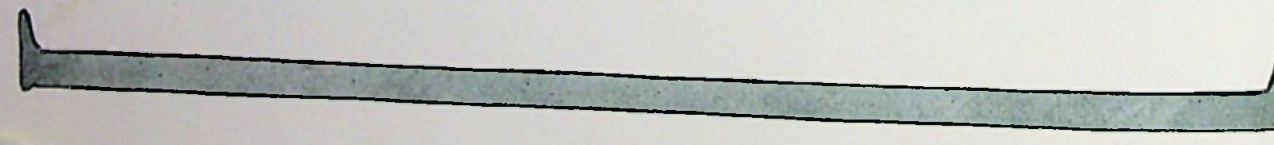

Most Reverend and dear Archbishop: The news of your appointment to the Metropolitan See of Dubuque was a message of great joy to the clergy, religious and laity of the Archdiocese, lifting as it did the gray shadow which has lain on all hearts since the passing away of our beloved Archbishop, our Father and our Friend, the late Most Reverend James John Keane.

Now hope and comfort breathe in the prophetic—"How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings and that preacheth peace, of him that sheweth forth good, that preacheth salvation, that saith to Sion: 'Thy God shall reign!'".

Our congratulations on the recognition of your merit by the Supreme Pontiff who made you the chosen one among the Lord's Anointed must of necessity be limited in expression but their perspective and volume, their depth and sincerity are strengthened and enhanced by nearly a century of congratulations, welcomes, and greetings of Clarke College Students.

For almost a hundred years have passed since the primitive days of St. Joseph's Prairie of Dubuque County when the humble little Academy from which Clarke College had its beginning greeted as Friend and Patron the saintly Pioneer, the zealous Missionary, Bishop Loras. Today as we greet and welcome you the latest of the princely line of distinguished and noble Prelates of the Metropolitan See of Dubuque, the present looks back on the past, their voices mingle and both the unison and retrospection give deep significance and tender impulse to our welcome and greeting.

From afar we have admired your glorious work for Catholic Education, for Church and State in Cincinnati and in the diocese of Lincoln and have rejoiced in the papal recognition of your achievements.

We now renew our rejoicing in a more special and personal manner, for you, our own Archbishop bring these high honors for distinguished service to the See of Dubuque.

"Veritas liberabit Vos" has been among the foundations of our College training. We shall strive to make this your beautifully significant motto a deep reality in the co-operation we bring to you. To this end Clarke College pledges its loyalty and all the inspiration flowing from the consecration of youthful hearts and lives to highest and noblest ideals; all the strength of its intellectual and spiritual endeavor; all the high courage born of fervent and earnest prayers—and these prayers being heard your dearest hopes will be realized, your work in the future as in the past will be great and grand and lasting; generations will see its glory and seeing it will bless the memory of our revered Archbishop, the Apostle of the Catholic Missionary Crusade, the Metropolitan of the Archdiocese of Dubuque.

The Faculty

TO THE FACULTY OF CLARKE COLLEGE

To Those

Who welcomed us on the threshold of this, our college life;
Whose lessons, outlined by the Divine Teacher extend far beyond the knowledge found in books;
Whose aim is to act always in accordance with the Holy Will of God;

To Those

Who sought ever to stimulate in us interest and intellectual curiosity;
to build in us high idealism, to develop initiative, self-dependence and moral power;
Who are more than teachers, who give unselfishly and generously of time and energy, and life;

To Those

To whom, though vast stretches of land and sea lay between us, our thoughts will always return and of whom happy memories will always be cherished;

To Those

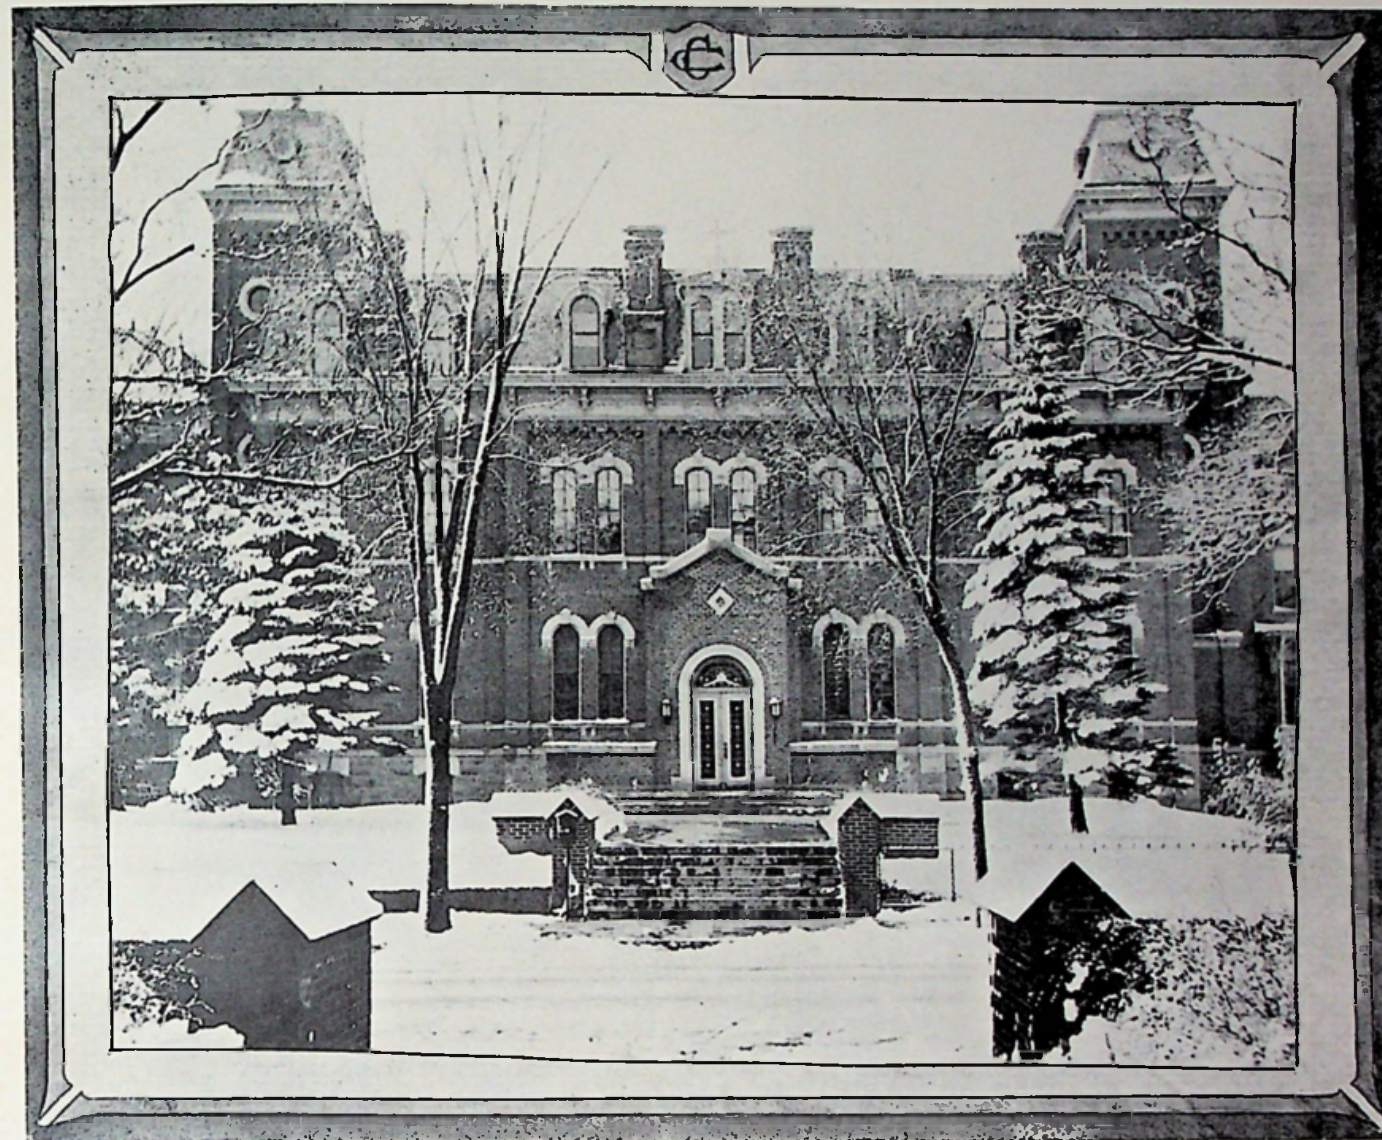

Who have made this College our beloved mother and who have infused into our minds and hearts sentiments of love and gratitude, we the Seniors of 1930 extend an expression of sincere appreciation, a pledge of loyalty and service, and a promise to follow the path illuminated by them, through prayer and word and example.

CLASSES

Our Class

Our class is your class
And it's my class
It's the Freshmen's class
The Sophomores' and the Juniors'
It's the college's class.

Its spirit is part of the spirit of all those classes
that have been here.

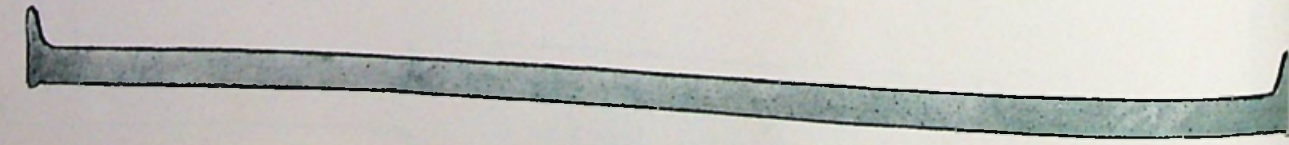

All those classes that are here,
And all the classes that will be here,
For our class is your class
And it's my class
It's our class.

You can tell them by looking at them
You can love them by knowing them,
You can trust them by trying them,
For our class is your class
And it's my class
It's our class.

If their eyes are smiling all the while
If their voices are singing
And their hearts are trusting,
If their feet are climbing
And their hands are helping
Then that's our class
It's your class
And it's my class
It's our class.

If their joy is ceaseless and their efforts endless
If they are always together
Working or praying
Singing or playing
If they are bound by something that's lasting,
Then that's our class
It's your class
And it's my class
It's our class.

If their aspiration is to be worthy of their inspiration
Which is your trust in them
Then that's our class
It's your class
And it's my class
It's OUR CLASS.

Pledge

of the

Class of 1930

Oh Alma Mater strong and true,
Oh Mother and Child above,
Thy children here in friendship dear
Pledge loyalty and love.

Oh Alma Mater clear and bright
As moon in starlit sky,
Grant that we may faithful be
To thy guidance from on high.

And when the Class of '30 stand
Where God's white knights adore
Our loyalty and love shall be
Our pledge forevermore.

Senior Class History

spirit of youthfulness and goodfellowship has characterized the Class of 1930 ever since that memorable day four years ago when as freshmen we met one another for the first time in what is now known as Mount St. Joseph Assembly Hall. With graduation at hand, we add up the columns of our contributions to the social, athletic, scholastic and religious life of the College.

Our members have conned heavy books of learned lore, amassed great stores of scientific data, appeared often on the honor roll, contributed to the LABARUM and the COURIER, but best of all have learned that knowledge is but a means toward achieving a broader life.

The Class of 1930 has come nobly to the foreground when Clarke College has called. Away back in Freshman year, during the throes of the endowment drive, we raised a thousand dollars as our contribution. Not being satisfied, we gave a carnival, and sponsored a dance at the Hotel La Salle in Chicago during the holidays. During our Junior year we rallied strong to assist with the building fund.

Athletics have not been slighted. We have to our credit the track championship in Freshman year, the cup in Sophomore year, six members of the class on the College basketball squad for the past two years, and the distinction of having had a furry dog, namely Junior, for a mascot.

Nor can we forget the notable part four of our class have taken in the choir. Pictures flash through our minds of sodality receptions, May processions, the High Mass at the beginning of each school year, Sunday and Feast Day Masses throughout the year, Benediction with wafted incense and sunlight through amber colored windows, flashing on the mellow grey walls.

Out of the multicolored pageant of bygone events come glimpses of Class days on the front campus, excursions up the Mississippi, with the water swishing through the paddle-wheel of the boat, the Junior-Senior banquet, scenes from all the plays and operettas, snatches of song reminiscent of recitals, Spring Formals, beautiful gowns, and suppressed excitement, sunsets over Bluewaters, Dubuque hills in the springtime, the pine grove after a snow-fall, the high activity and joy of vacation departures.

Friendships have been strengthened, acquaintances made, characters have been developed and faults corrected. Whole new fields of interests and endeavors have been opened to us. And always there has been that deep loyalty to the College and one another that characterizes the Class of 1930. Now the parting time is here, they will go out, these thirty of the Class of '30 with this flame of loyalty burning clear in their hearts.

Juniors

BEFRIENDED by understanding advisors and solicitous "big sisters," the proverbially bewildered freshmen of 1927 gradually grew into their niche in life, learned the routine of classes and study hours, and the joys of Thursday afternoons, excursions, the Spring Formal, and the traditional boat trip.

As "sophisticated" sophomores they found themselves as thoroughly at home at Clarke College as they had been at the Mount, and watched with interest the growth of the new Recreational Building with its many opportunities for diversion. The ceremonies of December Eighth, the annual retreat and St. Joseph's Day had a newer, deeper meaning and were participated in with a more understanding appreciation.

As Juniors, desirous of fostering a project quite as worthy of perpetuation as the Year Book they undertook, with many qualms and with much hesitation the publication of the Clarke Courier. Schooling themselves in the treacherously difficult art of combining truth with brevity and beauty in news articles, features and editorials, they gradually became apt at their journalistic avocation, and found each succeeding issue of the paper more attractive. . . .

And now, with Class Day and Graduation once more upon them, they can recall gratefully the willing cooperation they received from the whole College, faculty and students alike, and from many alumnae and friends; and they can smile at the doubts and difficulties which attended the publication of the all-important "first issue" of the now successfully established Clarke Courier.

Sophmores

THE year 1928 marked the beginning of Clarke College with its new name, and a starting point in the career of the present Sophmores. Ninty and nine they found themselves divided into three camps: Freshman A, Freshman B, and Freshman C. They were friendly camps and, having a great deal of life, and a reasonable amount of liberty, they devoted their time to the pursuit of happiness which they found in classes, and so many other engaging activities—the Fall Picnic, the Sleigh Ride, the Colonial Party, the Boat Trip, and the Spring Formal. They learned arts and sciences and other things—the best departments store in Debuque, the best place to lunch, and the thrill—at first—of having upper classmen remember their names.

Both Freshman and Sophomore year they embraced Athletics in a large way. The first year with their unique monkey-mascot, they won the Athletic Championship, and in token thereof the silver loving cup, which, adorned with their green, was their pride and joy. The second year they lost the basketball championship, but scored in volley ball.

In second year they chose Purple and White for their colors that would go with them to the end. Retaining much of their old talent they contributed to the success of the famous Pageant, Iowa Twenty-Nine, The Rivals, and Martha; one of their musicians won a place in the Tri-City Symphony contest with wide competition. Taking part again in all the feasts and outings of last year they found this time added enjoyment as they felt themselves absorbed into the traditions of the old Mount St. Joseph and the new Clarke College.

Freshmen

DURING the first week after classes had begun, the Freshmen learned to remember who were Freshmen and who were not. They had a lovely afternoon with their "big sisters" on Saturday, September 11, 1929. The Fall Outing at Eagle Point was a great help in making acquaintances ripen into friendships. The Freshmen were entertained by the Seniors at a Hallowe'en party in Mount St. Joseph Assembly Hall, and they in turn held the customary "Little Sister Christmas Party" for the Seniors. The hall was transformed into one vast parlor with rugs, lamps, a fireplace, and a Christmas tree. Final examination week, that event terrifying to all Freshmen did not prove disastrous. At the close of the semester they entered into the basketball field and were victorious over the Juniors.

According to the fates shown by the pancakes of Shrove Tuesday, March 4, the Freshmen shall have varied and happy futures in every line open to women. They joined heartily in the Old Time Party held Shrove Tuesday evening in Mount St. Joseph Assembly Hall, and enjoyed humbling themselves and entering the "bread-line" to receive a delicious pop-corn ball. In the Student Cooperative Government of the College, the class played an active part, their delegates reporting all topics discussed in the board meetings, with a spirit of sincere cooperation. In the Mission field they have been well represented, the Alaskan Missions having been their special charge.
